ftermath Sweepings—Some Few Unimportant Previous Mint Shortages— The Wherenbouts of Henoy—He can be Produced if Wanted—The Uarson Valley Murder, [Correspondence of the JOURNAL] Carson City, Nov., May 13, 1895.

In view of the recent examination of ex-Assistant Melter and Refiner John T. Jones not bringing out anything very definite or satisfactory regarding the $75,000 shortage in the Carson mint found by General Inspector Mason, all sorts of theories are advanced by people best posted in the mint affairs. The examination evidently snowed a shortage to the extent of less than one-half of the $75,000 through spurious or surreptitious melts and transfers, and it is therefore to be inferred that the prosecution has held trumps back for future reference, merely getting in enough before the U. S. Commissioner to have Jones bound over to appear before the U.S. Grand Jury.

Loakages, mistakes and difficulties in making the accounts and books balance properly have been shown extending back of the present administration. amination and was repeated on crossexamination last Friday that before Melter and Refiner Zabriskie died, obliged to purchase about 600 ounces of silver in order to make up a shortage in that metal developed in his department. His assistant, Jones, advanced the money, taking Zabriskie's note therefor, thus making the account all right with the Government.

The allowance officially made for loss in melting and refining is liberal and with good work and management has given a balance on the side of the refinery, but not always by any means, as has been shown. Zabriskie died Towit: silver, gold and greenbacks; all poor, but with an unsulfied reputation issued under and by authority of the for strict honesty and integrity.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

HE WILL BE KING OF SIAM. Slim Young Vadjira Vudh Is Made Crown Prince.

The young crown prince of Siam has been formally invested with all the insignia of his office. He is only 16 years old and is studying at Ascot, England, so as to learn to be a king. His name is almost as big as he is-Chowa Maha Vadjira Vudh.

The ceremony was performed in the drawing room of the Siamese legation at South Kensington, because it was not thought advisable to recall him to Bangkok on the death of the late Crown Prince Mahn Vadjirunhis. The young crown prince is the eldest son of King Chulalon Korn by his second wife.

Chulalen Korn's name is quite enough for several people. In full it is Phrabat Somdet Phra Paramindr Maha Chulalon

Korn Phra Chula Chom Klao Phra Chow Yuhua. Besides he has chosen another name, more familiar-George

The young prince may also choose the name of some foreign great man if he ontlives his father and is permitted to ascend the throne.

Eight special envoys from the king brought over the swords. One of these was the boy's uncle, Prince Svarti Sabhana, and to him the king gave the commands for every detail of the cere-

All the representatives of the Siames kingdom in Europe attended, all the men in gorgeous uniforms and the ladies in brilliant costumes. The crown prince were the gluttering uniform of a lieutenant of the royal bodyguard.

The coremony was very simple. Prince Syasti approached the crown prince, and having presented the proclamation invested him with the insignia of the White Elephant. The commission and proclamation were read, and the investiture was completed with the high civil and military commissions which the rank of the prince compels him to hold.

Then followed congratulatory addresses in the Siamese language, the first being delivered by the Siamese minister in Paris.

The crown prince replied, and the coremony was at an end.

Among the insignia presented were two magnificently joweled swords, which have been in the possession of the crown princes of Siam for the last 100 years. One is of the rarest workmanship, set in rubies and emeralds on a background of pure gold. The ceremony was too much for the All operations in MODER DEN- The ceremony was too much for the little fellow, and after it was all over the action commons. The Strength of a Jumping Mouse.

In proportion to its size, I believe the jumping mouse is the most active and powerful of all vertebrate animals. This tiny creature-no larger than a man's thumb—is from 21% to 3 inches in length, with a tail about twice as long as the head and body. It is therefore no larger than a house mouse, but it has light fore quarters, strong hind quarters, very long hind legs-and it can jump from 8 to 10 feet. If a mouse weighing two onnees (average) can jump 10 feet, how far should a 100 pound boy of equal agility be able to ump? Figure it out for yourself, and when you have obtained the correct answer, you will prop-orly appreciate the hind legs of this wonderful little mite.—W. T. Hornaday in St. Nicholas.

Ruth and the Horse.

Little Ruth was looking out of the window at the baker's horse. "Mamshe said, "doesn't a horse use two of his legs for hands?"

"Wby, no," mamma answered. "A horse doesn't need hands as we do." "But, mamma," the little girl persisted, "I don't see what he does when his nose itches."—Youth's Companion.

> How Do You Measure? How Do You Measure?
> I'm just as tall as my Brother Joe.
> For all he'll tell you it isn't so.
> Often and often he has said
> Ho's taller than I by half a head.
> If you count that way, perhaps he is,
> But—my feet go down as far as his.
> So, wherever our heads may be, I say
> I'm exactly as tall the other way.
> —Sydney Dayre in Youth's Companion.
